Senate contest

Former Rep. Mary Peltola (D) has a lead over Sen. Dan Sullivan (R), 46% - 41%, on the initial ballot with 4% going to the other Daniel Sullivan, 3% to Gerald Heikes (R) and 7% undecided. Running through the ranked choice process results in Peltola winning 53% - 47%.

- Peltola has sizable advantages among voters under 50, especially those 18-34. Sullivan keeps it close thanks to his lead among voters 50+.
- Independents, who make up about half of this likely voter sample, vote for Peltola by 32-points initially and 38-points after RCV reallocation.
- Peltola leads by more among women and college+ voters than Sullivan does with men and <college voters.
- The 11% not ranking either Peltola or Sullivan at the end voted for Trump in 2024 by a 40-point margin.

Senate: Images

Both main candidates are well known with Peltola's image positive at 49% - 43%, and Sullivan's slightly negative at 40% - 44%.

- Like on the ballot, Peltola's image is in positive territory thanks to voters under 50, while she is a bit negative with those 50+. The reverse is true for Sullivan.
- There is a big difference between how Independents view the two candidates, with Peltola popular and Sullivan underwater.
- Peltola's image is demographically strongest with women, Alaska Natives, and college graduates. Sullivan is stronger with men, especially men 50+, and those without college degrees.

Gubernatorial contest

Jonathan Kreiss-Tomkins (D) leads a trio of Republicans, getting 40% of the vote initially to 20% for Bernadette Wilson, 14% for Dave Bronson, and 7% for Treg Taylor with 18% undecided. Kreiss-Tomkins beats Wilson 55% - 45% after RCV reallocations.

- Kreiss-Tomkins wins both younger and older voters, though younger voters by a wider margin, in both the initial and RCV ballots.
- Wilson leads Bronson and Taylor out of the gate among both Republicans and Independents, which gets her to the final two after Taylor's voters split between Bronson and her.
- A sizable 25% are not ranking Kreiss-Tomkins or Wilson at the end and they voted for Trump in 2024 by a 41-point margin. These voters choosing a side could significantly alter the race.

Gubernatorial: Images

Unlike the Senate candidates, the three top candidates for governor are all much less well-known. Kreiss-Tomkins' image is best at 34% - 22%, Wilson's is mixed at 27% - 29%, and Bronson is double-digits negative at 26% - 37%.

- Kreiss-Tomkins is viewed favorably overall thanks to being better defined among Democrats and Independents than Republicans and having a 2:1 favorable image among Indies with an opinion.
- Wilson's image is +9 among voters 50+, but -18 among voters under 50. Bronson is -8 with voters 50+ and -15 among voters under 50. Kreiss-Tomkins is relatively popular with both age segments.

House contest

Incumbent Nick Begich (R) leads Independent Bill Hill 45% to 31% in the race for Congress with 9% picking Eric Hafner (D), 3% James McDermott (L) and 11% undecided. After RCV reallocation, Begich defeats Hill, 57% - 43%.

- Begich's lead is driven by voters 50+, among whom he leads Hill by 22-points both initially and after RCV.
- Hill does lead among Independents, but Begich's larger lead among Republicans than Hill gets among Democrats puts him ahead.
- Begich has advantages across gender, and race/ethnicity lines, with voters without college degrees picking him by a big margin and college+ closely split.
- The 18% not ranking either Begich or Hill at the end voted for Harris in 2024 by a 24-point margin.

Begich is much more well-known than Hill, with voters divided on their opinions of him at 44% - 43%. Hill's image is favorable among those choosing a side at 32% - 17%, but half do not have an opinion.

- Begich's image has a significant cut by age, favorable to a majority of those 50+, but negative among voters under 50. Hill is in positive territory across age brackets.
- Although he is listed as non-partisan on the ballot, Hill's image is stronger among Democrats than it is among Independents, though he is solid with both groups.

Political environment

78% of likely voters in Alaska say they are a 10 out of 10 on vote motivation, with huge differences by age. 87% of voters 50+ say they are a 10, hitting 92% among voters 65+. This compares to 62% among voters under 50, including just 43% among voters 18-34.

- By party, Republicans are a bit more motivated than Democrats. However, 2024 Harris voters outpace 2024 Trump voters.
- Alaska voters are negative on the direction of the country, with 58% saying wrong direction vs. just 37% saying right direction.
- Just over half say they are worried about their personal financial situation. Concerns are higher among younger voters, Independents and Democrats, and women.

Partisan environment

The negativity about the direction of the country extends across party lines with the Republican Party (-7) and Democratic Party (-14) both underwater among Alaska voters.

- Although the Republican Party is more unpopular with Independents than the Democratic Party, there are more Republicans in Alaska than Democrats, causing it to have a less negative image overall.
- President Trump's job approval is a bit underwater at 45% - 53%, driven by negativity among voters under 50.
- A measure to repeal the top 4 primary system is close with No narrowly ahead of Yes by 3-points. The question is polarized by party, with the more numerous Independents picking No by 26-points.

Most important issues (1st + 2nd choice) determining vote

- Rising prices and affordability is ranked 1st or 2nd by 42% of Alaska voters when it comes to their most important issue this November and it's the top issue for almost every group. Peltola and Kreiss-Tomkins have sizable leads among this group, while Hill is narrowly ahead of Begich.
- Threats to Democracy, driven by Democrats, is the 2nd biggest issue, then Taxes/Spending in 3rd, which is higher among Republicans.
- Social Security & Medicare registers as the 5th biggest issue overall but ranks 3rd among Seniors and Swing voters 50+.

Top Concerns on Rising Prices & Affordability

Groceries followed by gasoline are the top items Alaska voters are concerned about impacting rising prices and affordability.

- They are the same top two for voters under 50 and over 50, although voters 18-34 and Alaska Natives put a higher level of worry on Housing.
- Health Care and Utilities are also significant factors for many voters on affordability.
- For those who call Rising Prices and Affordability as one of their top two issues, 56% cite groceries followed by 40% saying gasoline.

Q37. Which two of the following are you most concerned about in regard to rising prices and affordability? If you are not concerned about any rising prices, please just say so.

FabrizioWard + IMPACT RESEARCH

AARP commissioned the bipartisan polling team of Fabrizio Ward (R) & Impact Research (D) to conduct a survey of voters in Alaska. The firms interviewed 800 likely voters statewide. The survey was done between September 8-11, 2026. The interviews were conducted via live interviewer on cell phone (40%) and landline (15%), as well as SMS-to-web (45%). The sample was randomly drawn from the Alaska voter list. The margin of sampling error at the 95% confidence level for the 800 statewide sample is ±3.5%.

Due to rounding, answer choices may not always add up to 100%. Data is specified in the report that it is among either the 18+ or 50+ universe.
