DURHAM, NH - With the election campaign nearly over, Democrat Chris Pappas continues to lead Republican John E. Sununu in the race for U.S. Senate in New Hampshire. Incumbent Democrat Maggie Goodlander holds a comfortable lead over Republican nominee Lily Tang Williams in New Hampshire's Second Congressional District, while Democrat Stefany Shaheen holds a lead over Republican Anthony DiLorenzo in CD1. Incumbent Republican Governor Kelly Ayotte is statistically tied with Democrat Cinde Warmington, but Ayotte is the more personally popular of the two and most expect her to win re-election. Democrats hold leads in the races for Executive Council, the State Senate, and State House and are generally more interested in the election. Affordability or inflation is the most important issue in the election to likely voters.

2026 Senate Election

In the election for U.S. Senate from New Hampshire, First District Democratic Congressman Chris Pappas continues to lead former Republican Senator John E. Sununu in the final days of the election. Including those leaning towards a candidate, 54% of likely voters say they will vote for Pappas in the upcoming election or have already voted for him, 42% say they will or have voted for Sununu, 2% support Constitution Party candidate Edmond Laplante, less than 1% support another candidate, and 2% are undecided. Nearly all Democrats (99%) support Pappas, up from 93% in September, while 89% of Republicans support Sununu, largely unchanged since September (87%). Just over half of Independents (54%) support Pappas, up from 43% in September.

Pappas is the more personally popular candidate among likely general election voters: 39% have a favorable opinion of Pappas, 45% have an unfavorable opinion, and 16% are neutral, yielding a net favorability rating (the percentage who have a favorable opinion minus the percentage who have an unfavorable opinion) among likely voters of -6, up from -14 in September. Only 35% have a favorable opinion of Sununu, 54% have an unfavorable opinion, 11% are neutral, and less than 1% don't know enough about him to say, yielding a net favorability rating of -19, largely unchanged since September (-15). Most likely voters (75%) don't know enough to have an opinion on Laplante.

Pappas's net favorability (-6) is unchanged since September 2025 (-6), increasing since September 2026 on the strength of an increase among Democrats. By contrast, Sununu's net favorability (-18) has declined since September 2025 (-5), with considerable declines among Independents and Democrats. The tone of the campaign has been very negative in recent weeks and both campaigns have succeeded in lowering the favorability of their opponent.

Net Favorability - New Hampshire 2026 U.S. Senate General Election Candidates - by Party ID

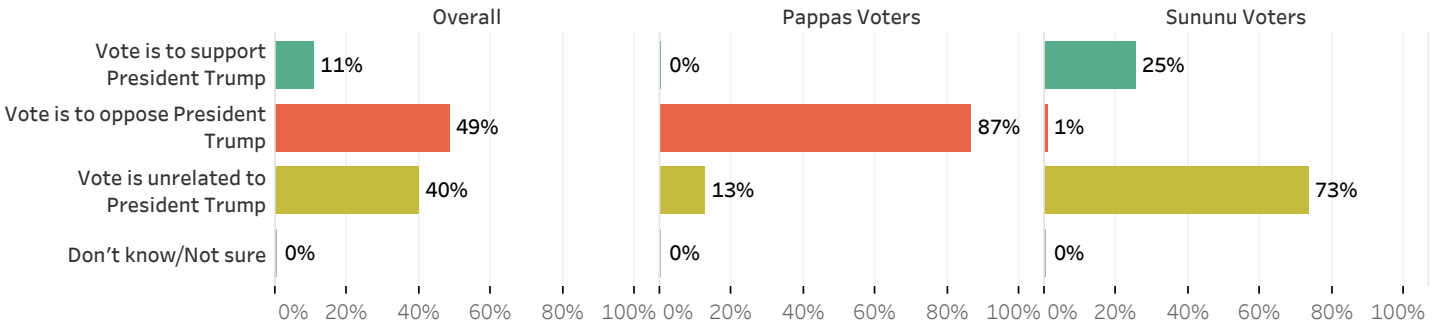

A majority (57%) of likely voters think Pappas will win the election, only 27% think that Sununu will win, less than 1% believe Laplante will win, and 16% are unsure. Most Pappas voters (83%) believe Pappas will win, while a slim majority of Sununu voters (56%) think Sununu will win.

Granite State Poll Methodology

These findings are based on the latest Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Granite State Panel members were sent an invitation to complete the survey and 1,857 completed the survey online, yielding a response rate of 39%. In addition, 325 New Hampshire residents completed the survey after receiving an invitation via text message to complete the survey. Overall, 2,182 New Hampshire residents completed the survey online between October 27 and October 31, 2026. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 2.1 percent. Included in the sample were 2,040 likely general election voters (margin of sampling error +/- 2.2 percent), 1,032 of whom reside in New Hampshire's First Congressional District (MOE +/- 3.1 percent) and 1,005 of whom reside in New Hampshire's Second Congressional District (MOE +/- 3.1 percent). In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response. These MSE's have not been adjusted for design effect. The design effect for the survey is 2.4%.

The Granite State Panel is a probability-based web panel of New Hampshire residents. Approximately 8,800 New Hampshire adults have been recruited from phone, text-to-web, or mail-to-web surveys sent to randomly-selected phone numbers or addresses. Panelists are then asked to participate in online surveys sponsored by the UNH Survey Center.

Data were weighted by respondent sex, age, education, and region of the state to targets from the most recent American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau, as well as party registration levels provided by the NH Secretary of State and to 2024 election results in New Hampshire. Surveys were taken in English, all respondent data included passes Qualtrics data quality checks, and single-use survey links were used to prevent multiple submissions by respondents.

The number of respondents in each demographic below may not equal the number reported in cross-tabulation tables as some respondents choose not to answer some questions. Due to rounding, percentages may not sum to 100%. All coding of open-ended responses is conducted using AI coding software.
